PRICE

DATE OF SALE

1. The sale

The seller sells the item described above to the buyer for the price shown, and the buyer agrees to buy it on those terms. Payment and delivery both happen on the date of sale unless the parties have written something else below.

2. The seller confirms

That they own the item outright, that nobody else has a claim, loan or lien over it, and that they are free to sell it.

3. Sold as it stands

The item is sold as it is, where it is. The buyer has had the chance to examine it and is satisfied with its condition. The seller gives no warranty about how it will perform, beyond what the law requires.

4. Risk and ownership

Ownership and risk pass to the buyer when the price is paid in full and the item is handed over. From that moment the item is the buyer's responsibility.

5. This is the whole agreement

This document is the whole of what the parties agreed about this sale. Anything either party said beforehand that is not written here does not form part of it.

Both parties confirm the details above are correct.
